Dear commissioners,

You have the power to save a venerable and emblematic building from demolition. The Greek revival farm house at 371 Indian Hill road was built in the 1840's. It is a landmark, an architectural and historic treasure.

Its new owners, who wish to demolish it and rebuild ( a bigger house ) say that restoring it would be more expensive. The owners claim to be in a bind, but it is a bind of their own making. Surely they had the house inspected before they bought it.

Surely they knew what they were buying. In any case, your mandate does not include helping property buyers out of financial quandaries. In this we are all on our own.

John and Kate Hough
